Live from Burkittsville, it's the Blair Witch invasion! Kim Director, as Goth girl extraordinaire in Book of Shadows: Blair Witch 2, is here to save the night with a part meaty enough to sink her fangs into. Kim finally has an opportunity, with a featured role, to let her dark gifts shine. No stranger to the world of heavy eyeliner, Kim slips into the role of Goth girl Kim quite effortlessly giving a dynamic and well-rounded performance. One which will undoubtedly ensure her more work.

With a great deal of theater work in her repertoire, the transition to film was an interesting shift in acting for Kim. "The camera is such a different medium that it took me awhile to warm up to it. To realize that you basically need to be comfortable with yourself, to relax in front of the camera, because it will pick up everything. I like it because it's so intimate."

Getting her cinematic start in Spike Lee's He Got Game, Kim has acted in two other Spike Lee films, the recently-released Bamboozled and most notably in Summer of Sam. "[Lee] hired me without [my] having done anything at all and he really took a chance. It's been amazing. I owe him the most because he's the one who let me get my feet wet."

Recently relocated to L.A., Kim Director stands primed for work, work, and more work. In addition to possessing an alluring and mysterious appeal, she has enough acting chops to chop suey the competition. So watch out, there's a new actress in town! ▼
